Why Does Society Need Philosophers?

Trying to communicate to my students in courses in ethics and social philosophy the difference I think philosophy can make to us and to our society, I am often suddenly brought up short. They don't believe it, I sense. Their respectful silences, wry grins, and exchange of glances are more eloquent than they think: 'Let him have his illusions.' Sometimes, after classes in which my 'high-mindedness' about philosophy has been particularly conspicuous, some students will hang around and finally someone will say, not always directly, 'Are you serious?' Then, it comes home to me with full force. Many of my students believe that philosophy is intrinsically interesting but inconsequential; others that clearer, more critical thought will make them 'more logical' and so more likely to score higher on objective tests for professional schools; still others want to track down the meaning of 'existential' so as to live up to some expected level of cultural sophistication. As someone who 'professes' philosophy I am surely biased, but I think we can have much fluffier expectations than any of these.

Once I was quoted by a national magazine as claiming that I wanted to persuade society that philosophers are needed. Of course, the mail rolled in, and among the replies received (some from unemployed philosophy students who remained unpersuaded), I paused a long time over the following one sentence question from someone in Milwaukee: "Seriously, Professor Beatty, why does society need philosophers?"

What follows is more or less the reply I sent, a kind of summary statement of what I attempt to argue, more informally, in classes. Those of my students who will see in the paragraphs below my attempt to have 'the last word,' can write to me.

Dear Mr./Ms. X:

Plato's Socrates, who was executed in 399 B.C. in part because Athenians had serious doubts about the sociopolitical 'benefits' of philosophy, took your question seriously, as I do. In his Apology he likens his society to a well-bred horse who, because of its large size, is sluggish, sleepy even, and constantly needs to be awakened and aroused. The horsefly, to which he compares the philosopher, performs this function. To wit: no society can keep its head unless it possesses a group of individuals whose proper virtues are the detection and working-over of fundamental assumptions and claims—often unquestioned in the rush of daily life—which are decisive in forming our institutions, and so our lives and life-chances.

Since values and principles, ingredients in our unquestioned assumptions, are not merely dispensable items we carry round as though in our pockets, but—as mediated by cultures, institutions, laws—are inseparable from who we are and how we view ourselves and our satisfactions, our relations to others, everything depends on the effort to achieve better rather than worse. The examination and critique of claims to truth and rightness is at the center of the philosophic enterprise. Thus, society needs philosophers just as any large authoritative group needs a clarification and critique of its goals and assumptions to awaken it from dogmatic slumber, to help keep it from the wheel ruts of prejudice and inertia. Reinhold Niebuhr says somewhere that "A society which exempts ultimate principles from criticism will find difficulty in dealing with historical forces which have appropriated these truths as their special possession."

Here, at least, is where I would begin in replying to this question. But there is much more to be said and then clarified as important rejoinders are made. Such as, how does one distinguish the role I give to philosophy from that of thoughtful people in general? Shouldn't we distinguish between good and bad philosophizing? Is it possible for philosophers to distance themselves sufficiently from social assumptions and principles to be genuinely capable of an objective critique? Should philosophers directly involve themselves in government? Do they have a duty to communicate their assessments? Is it possible for philosophers to 'gain the ear' of their fellow citizens?

This short reply only opens the question. But the only way to see if it is a good or promising reply is to begin the process of philosophical inquiry oneself.

On November 3, 1979, an anti-Ku Klux Klan rally was held in Greensboro, North Carolina. Five people died from bullet wounds suffered during that rally. On November 17, 1980, a jury found those who fired the bullets not guilty of any crime.

The Duke community was disturbed by the verdict for at least two days.

My Concern

A specific concern of mine since coming to Duke has been the political and social consciousness of Duke students. This is problematic because students at Duke are not cooperative as a unit and thus are ineffective in developing or influencing University policy. One may observe several student groups organizing around one particular issue; however, each group conducts activities solely for its own members.

There is little or no communication or coalescence between different groups such as NC-PIRG, BSA, ADW, and UDS, who are so selfishly concerned with their individual problems and causes that none attempt to note the similarities between their group and the next. Instead of one dynamic coalition of politically aware students, one finds several weak groups that do not have the organization, support, or budget to have power or influence at Duke.

The tragedy of this disunity is made all the more clear by the success of the rare instances of cooperation. For example, prior to the national presidential elections of 1980, several organizations sponsored candidate forums and debates. None of these singly-sponsored forums were attended by more than 20 or so students. But, the BSA sponsored a candidates forum and did invite other groups to participate: the College Republicans, Duke Democrats, Students for Anderson, and the Citizens' Party. The turn-out for this forum was about 70 students. It was successful.

Still another problem in student political life at Duke is the confused or misplaced priorities of student groups. One is not clear of what goals and objectives a particular group holds, or how they differ from another group's.

Every student has some responsibility for the failure of student politics at Duke. That is to say, "If you are not part of the solution, you are part of the problem." ASDU is the largest student group on campus and has accomplished some major victories for the entire University community during the past 15 years. ASDU has been at the forefront of negotiations between the faculty and the administration on behalf of student interests. Most recently, however, ASDU has been reactionary rather than creative. ASDU, today, responds to crises rather than actively planning and avoiding them. Furthermore, many students question who ASDU represents. ASDU has demonstrated a stronger concern for procedure than for policy, and for student services, such as a bus to Chapel Hill, over academic policy reform. This has alienated many other student groups. Finally, ASDU has exhibited a phobia toward campus political groups which ASDU senses as threats to its "power." ASDU appears nonpolitical in scope to these political groups and thus unimportant. ASDU is just part of the problem.

A final element of the problem which obfuscates student politics is the reckless, uninvolved observer who reads or writes what appears in articles around campus. A certain amount of sensationalism is included in the stories regarding the intra-group or inter-group conflicts. These observers rarely have an understanding or concern for the important issues within student political conflicts, but rather are preoccupied with finding news.

The result of ineffective student politics is the guarantee that students at Duke will not be considered seriously by key decision makers in the faculty or the administration.

DUKE

March, 1978

A snowy month . . . a time when electricity could be felt around Duke, its students and its loyalists . . . a time when many eyes opened into a new reality, the reality of big-time college basketball. It began with a weekend in Greensboro. Three glorious days that brought Duke its first Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament Championship in over a decade. Then to the NCAA Tournament in Charlotte and Providence . . . three more games then where "the herd of elephants" dared. Then it was off to see the Wizard . . . The Big Top . . . Television cameras everywhere you'd turn . . . Colors you wouldn't believe . . . crazies . . . loonies (and most of those were the participants) . . . College Basketball's annual "elite" group . . . more lucky than elite . . . the boys that create dreams and fatten their respective schools' treasuries . . . The Final Four . . . and boy it's a trip!

Well . . . we tried . . . but failed to bring home the hoopsters' dream. Funny, but we did bring something home . . . innocence . . . and youth . . . and love. Little did we realize that we were fresh prey to the vultures who were circling above. But we didn't care. We were riding that sought after "high" that comes with performing as best as we know how. Oblivious . . . satisfied . . . exhausted. From the thousands who shared with us through television to the thousands that met us on our return to Durham, there was a tremendous feeling of accomplishment . . . it was a buzz, a big BUZZ.

The scene was Duke campus. The quad was packed. We spoke, they cheered. We left, they stayed. Thousands socialized together celebrating the newly found unifying bond, Duke hoops. If you were there, you were there . . . enough.

Later

Change . . . some acknowledge it. Some cannot deal with it. Others hate it . . . change. Very few thrive on change. As my world-view has changed, so have the people I associate with. Success doesn't change people. People change themselves. Success sux. Learning to deal with success doesn't. Out of all my internal confusion during my middle two years at Duke, I feel I have emerged a stronger and more complex individual. I thrive on being flexible and dealing with change. That makes me happy. My four years remind me of a verse from a song by Dan Fogelberg. It goes: "... Lessons learned are like bridges burned, you only need to cross them but once. Is the knowledge gained worth the price of the pain? Are the spoils worth the cost of the hunt?"

Thank you, Duke . . . and all that is in it!

THAD AND THE BAG MUST RACE THE CLOCK IN ORDER TO SAVE DUKE FROM A NUCLEAR HOLOCAUST AT THE HANDS OF THE BLONDE BOMBSHELL! 'NUFF SAID!

THE AMAZING FINALE OF THE BAG
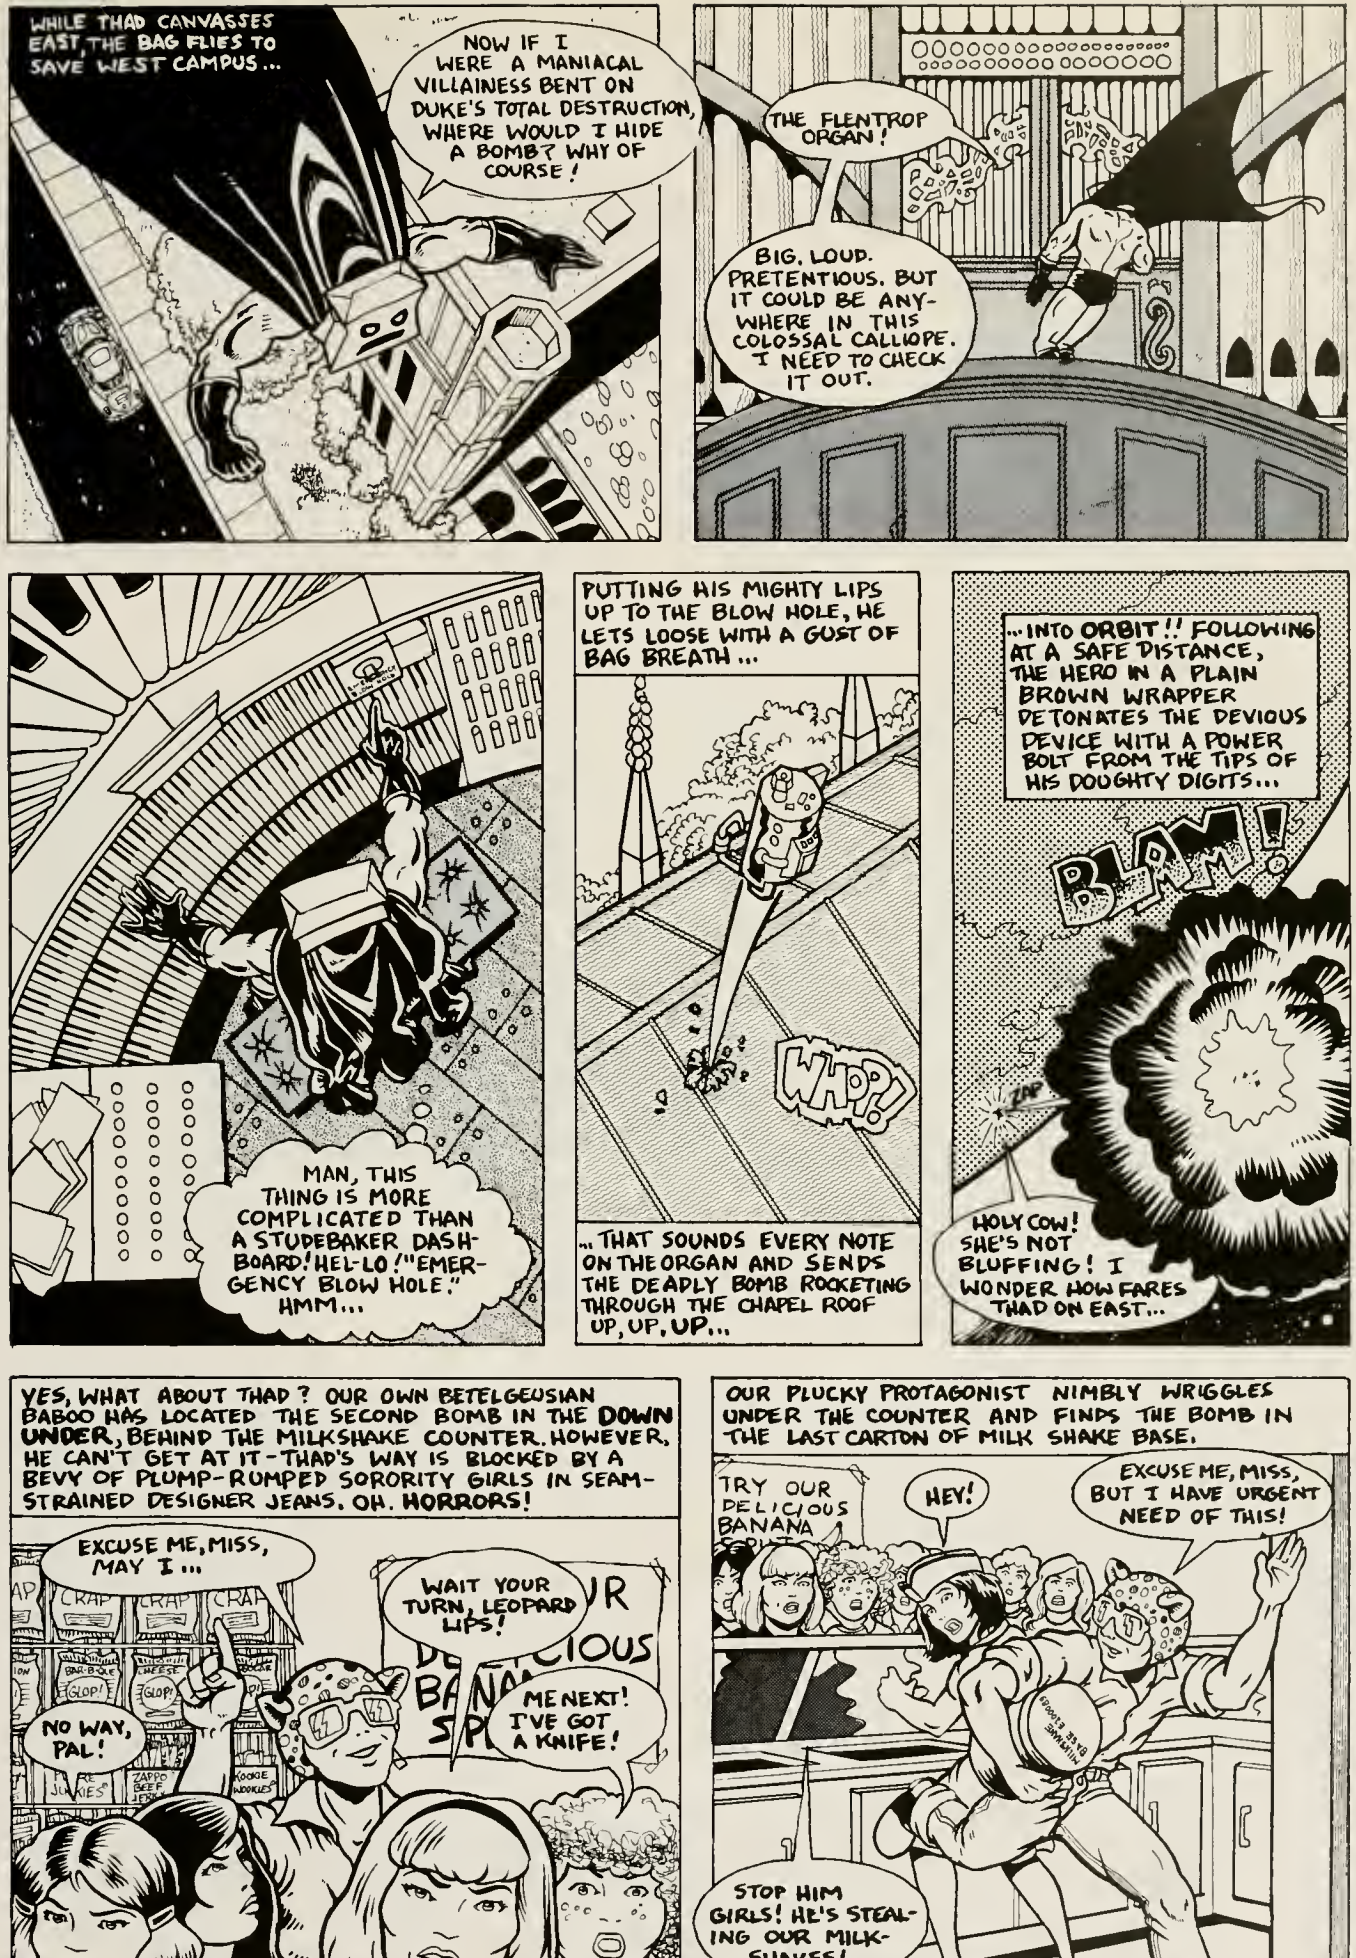
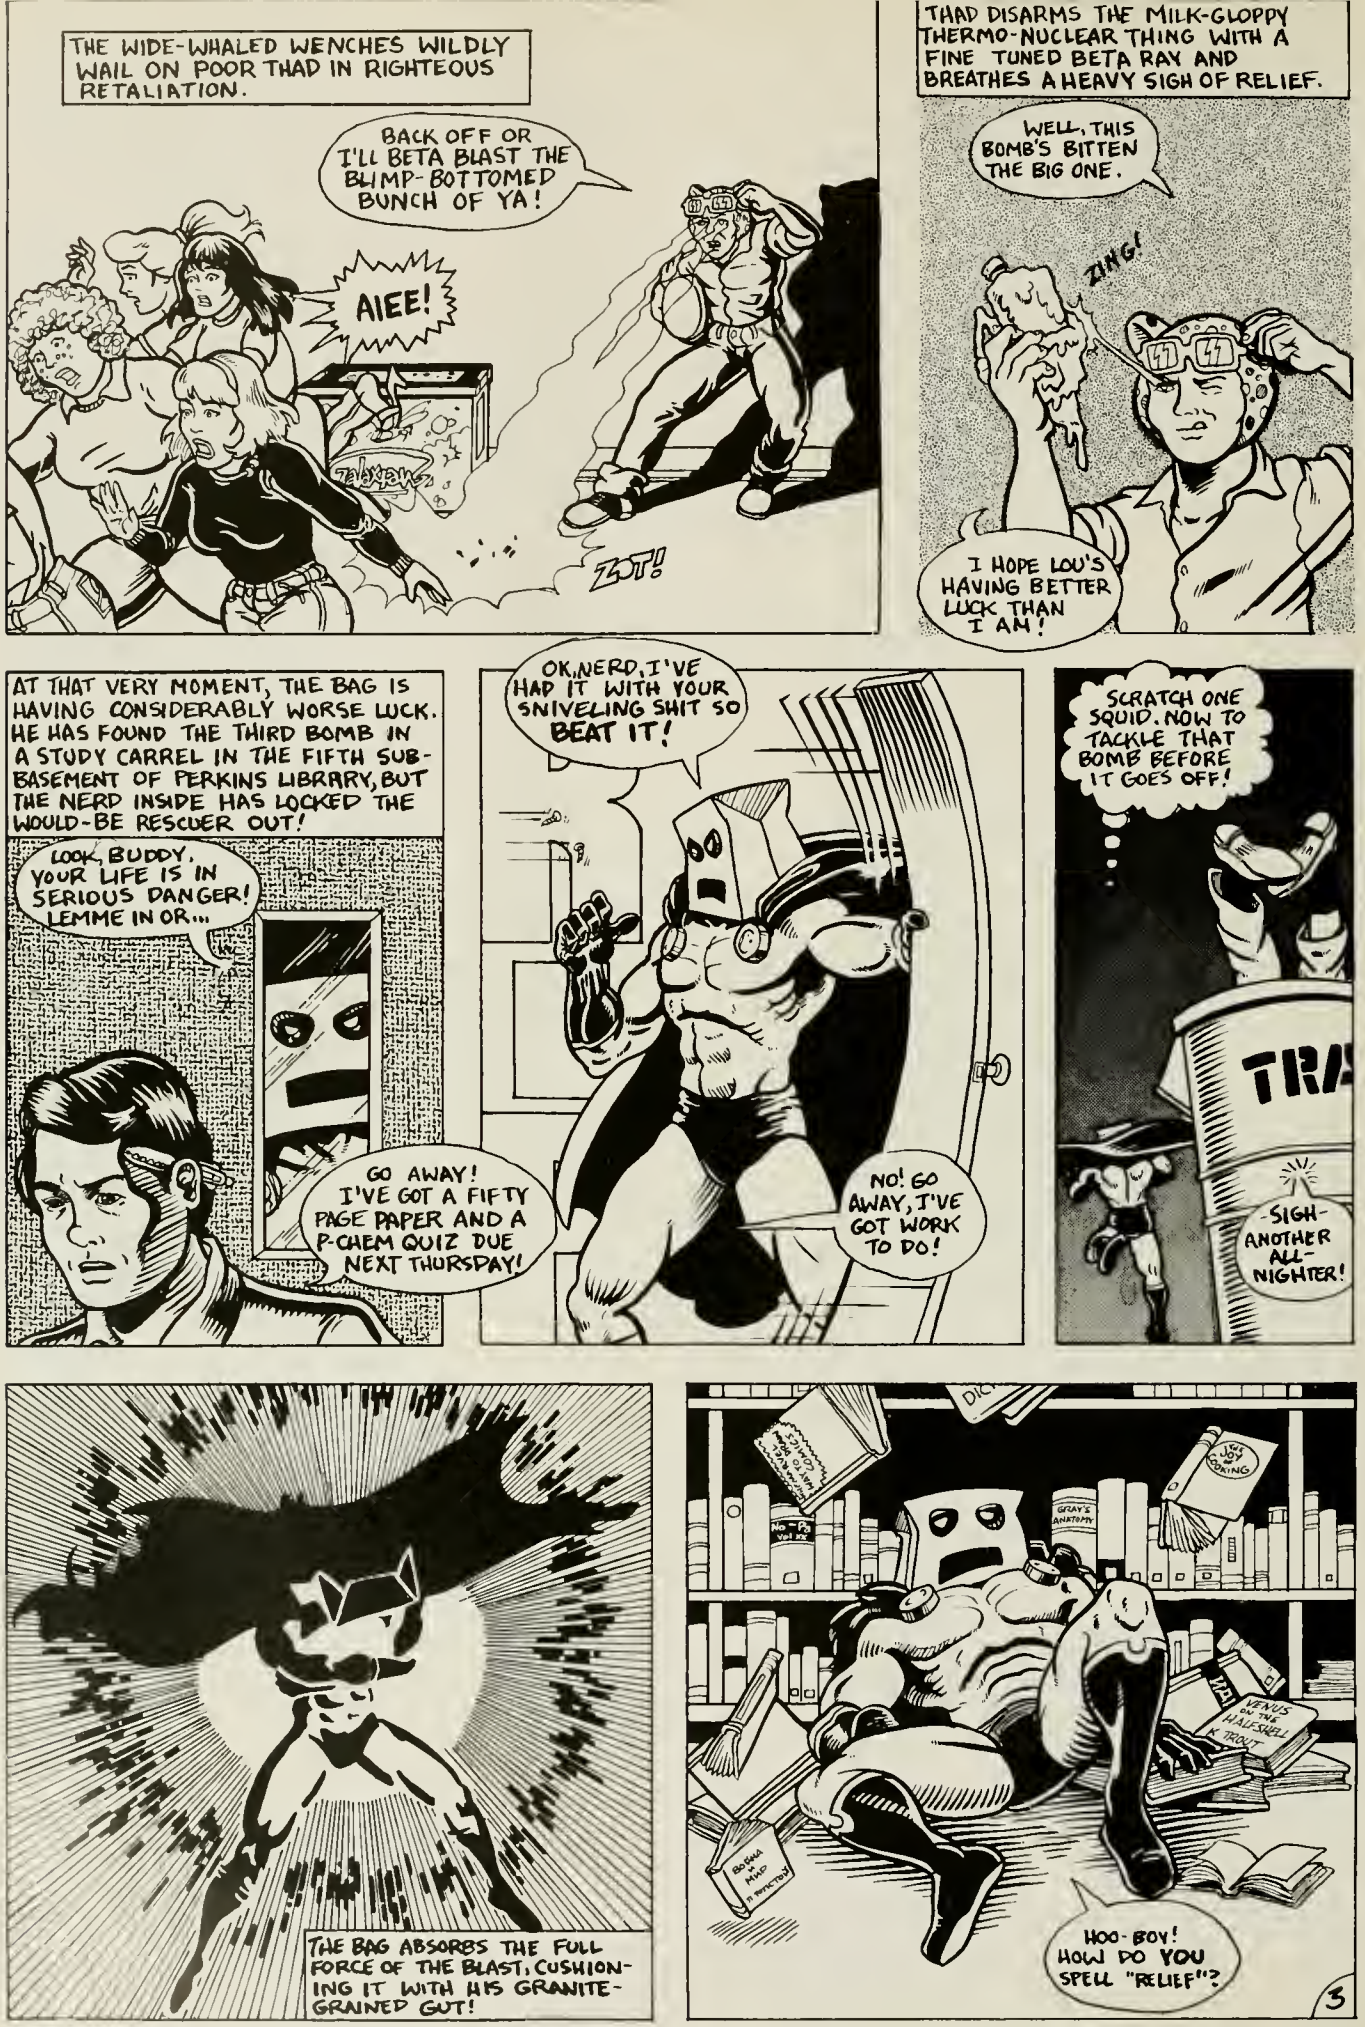
BY
CHUCK WOJTKIEWICZ
JIMMY CARTER
AT LONG LAST OUR BELOVED HEROES, LOUVER P. GRAVITY (ALIAS THE BAG) AND THADDEUS STRONTIUM-90 (ALIAS THADDEUS Sr-NINETY) ARE APPROACHING THE FATEFUL DAY OF GRADUATION THAT WILL END THEIR HALCYON COLLEGE ADVENTURES. THE LEGENDARY LADS LOOK FORWARD TO TOMORROW'S COMMENCEMENT CEREMONY WITH MATURE AND REFLECTIVE SOBRIETY...
SHIT! SPLIT 'EM!
THAD, I'VE BEEN HOLDING OFF ON THIS QUESTION AS LONG AS POSSIBLE, BUT I'VE JUST GOTTA KNOW...
...WHAT ARE YOU DOING AFTER YOU GRADUATE?
YOU KNOW, LIKE A JOB, A CAREER.
WHAT?!! YOU MEAN AFTER NINE WORK-LADEN YEARS IN PURSUIT OF MY B.A. IN HINDU-URDU LANGUAGES, THAT I'M ACTUALLY EXPECTED TO...
RING
WHOOPS! THERE'S THE BAG-A-TEL!
HOWDY-DOO, THIS IS THAD AND LOU, TALKIN' TO YOU!
GOOD EVENING, HANDSOME. I HEAR THAT YOU BOYS CAN GET IN TOUCH WITH THE BAG. PLEASE TELL HIM THAT I, THE BLONDE BOMBSHELL, HAVE PLANTED SEVEN MICRO-NUCLEAR BOMBS ON EAST AND WEST CAMPUSES IN AN INSANE EFFORT TO WREAK VENGEFUL HAVOC ON DUKE UNIVERSITY...
"...AND ALL SEVEN BOMBS WILL DETONATE BY TOMORROW'S CEREMONY. HAVE YOU GOT THAT, DREAMBOAT? NIGHTY-NOOPIES!"
C'MON THAD, WE GOTTA SAVE DUKE FROM NUCLEAR ANNIHILATION!
FORGET IT. I'M STILL PISSED.
OH, THAD! WHAT WOULD YOUR MOTHER SAY?
WELL, OK, I GUESS THIS HAS ALL THE EARMARKS OF BEING A JOB FOR THADDEUS AND...
...THE BAG!



WHILE THAD CANVASSES EAST, THE BAG FLIES TO SAVE WEST CAMPUS...
NOW IF I WERE A MANIACAL VILLAINESS BENT ON DUKE'S TOTAL DESTRUCTION, WHERE WOULD I HIDE A BOMB? WHY OF COURSE!
THE FLENTROP ORGAN!
BIG. LOUD. PRETENTIOUS. BUT IT COULD BE ANYWHERE IN THIS COLOSSAL CALLIOPE. I NEED TO CHECK IT OUT.
MAN, THIS THING IS MORE COMPLICATED THAN A STUDEBAKER DASHBOARD! HEL-LO! "EMERGENCY BLOW HOLE." HMM...
PUTTING HIS MIGHTY LIPS UP TO THE BLOW HOLE, HE LETS LOOSE WITH A GUST OF BAG BREATH...
WHOP!
...THAT SOUNDS EVERY NOTE ON THE ORGAN AND SENDS THE DEADLY BOMB ROCKETING THROUGH THE CHAPEL ROOF UP, UP, UP...
...INTO ORBIT!! FOLLOWING AT A SAFE DISTANCE, THE HERO IN A PLAIN BROWN WRAPPER DETONATES THE DEVIOUS DEVICE WITH A POWER BOLT FROM THE TIPS OF HIS DOUGHTY DIGITS...
BLAM!
ZAP
HOLY COW! SHE'S NOT BLUFFING! I WONDER HOW FARES THAD ON EAST...
YES, WHAT ABOUT THAD? OUR OWN BETELGEUSIAN BABOO HAS LOCATED THE SECOND BOMB IN THE DOWN UNDER, BEHIND THE MILKSHAKE COUNTER. HOWEVER, HE CAN'T GET AT IT - THAD'S WAY IS BLOCKED BY A BEVY OF PLUMP-RUMPED SORORITY GIRLS IN SEAM-STRAINED DESIGNER JEANS. OH. HORRORS!
EXCUSE ME, MISS, MAY I...
WAIT YOUR TURN, LEOPARD LIPS!
NO WAY, PAL!
ME NEXT! I'VE GOT A KNIFE!
CRAP
GLOP!
OUR PLUCKY PROTAGONIST NIMBLY WRIGGLES UNDER THE COUNTER AND FINDS THE BOMB IN THE LAST CARTON OF MILK SHAKE BASE.
TRY OUR DELICIOUS BANANA
HEY!
EXCUSE ME, MISS, BUT I HAVE URGENT NEED OF THIS!
STOP HIM GIRLS! HE'S STEALING OUR MILKSHAKES!
2



THE WIDE-WHALED WENCHES WILDLY WAIL ON POOR THAD IN RIGHTEOUS RETALIATION.
BACK OFF OR I'LL BETA BLAST THE BLIMP-BOTTOMED BUNCH OF YA!
AIEE!
ZZT!
THAD DISARMS THE MILK-GLOPPY THERMO-NUCLEAR THING WITH A FINE TUNED BETA RAY AND BREATHES A HEAVY SIGH OF RELIEF.
WELL, THIS BOMB'S BITTEN THE BIG ONE.
ZING!
I HOPE LOU'S HAVING BETTER LUCK THAN I AM!
AT THAT VERY MOMENT, THE BAG IS HAVING CONSIDERABLY WORSE LUCK. HE HAS FOUND THE THIRD BOMB IN A STUDY CARREL IN THE FIFTH SUB-BASEMENT OF PERKINS LIBRARY, BUT THE NERD INSIDE HAS LOCKED THE WOULD-BE RESCUER OUT!
LOOK, BUDDY, YOUR LIFE IS IN SERIOUS DANGER! LEMME IN OR...
GO AWAY! I'VE GOT A FIFTY PAGE PAPER AND A P-CHEM QUIZ DUE NEXT THURSDAY!
OK, NERD, I'VE HAD IT WITH YOUR SNIVELING SHIT SO BEAT IT!
NO! GO AWAY, I'VE GOT WORK TO DO!
SCRATCH ONE SQUID. NOW TO TACKLE THAT BOMB BEFORE IT GOES OFF!
TRA
-SIGH- ANOTHER ALL-NIGHTER!
THE BAG ABSORBS THE FULL FORCE OF THE BLAST, CUSHIONING IT WITH HIS GRANITE-GRAINED GUT!
GRAY'S ANATOMY
VENUS ON THE HALF-SHELL K. TROUT
HOO-BOY! HOW DO YOU SPELL "RELIEF"?

ELSEWHERE
MISTRESS! MISTRESS! THE TWO RADIOACTIVE STUDENTS HAVE FOUND AND DESTROYED THREE OF YOUR BOMBS!
FEAR NOT, YOU SERVILE SIMP. THEY CANNOT FIND ALL SEVEN BOMBS BY GRADUATION...
... AND ALL OF DUKE WILL LIE IN RUINS ABOUT MY SHAPELY ANKLES!
BACK ON EAST THAD IS TRYING TO EXTRICATE A BOMB FROM THE MIDST OF A GROUP OF FRISBEE-FLINGING, BONG-HITTING BOHEMIANS IN THE GAZEBO.
UM, Y'ALL KNOW YOU'VE GOT A HIGHLY DEADLY NUCLEAR DEVICE THERE, DON'T YOU?
OH, FOR SURE MAN, BUT WE WANT THE TOTAL EXPERIENCE OF SUDDEN SEARING DESTRUCTION AND GENETIC DECAY.
AH, RIGHT, BUT DON'T YOU THINK SOME OF OUR MEEKER NEIGHBORS MIGHT OBJECT TO THE LATE-NITE NOISE?
NO NUKES
BUT MAN, IT'S SO KEY TO THE HUMAN CONDITION. THIS IS THE TOTAL EXPERIENCE OF...
Tick Tick Tick
LIKE, WOW! LOOK MAN, IT'S THE GRATEFUL DEAD!!
WHERE?!
WHERE!?
DUKE
WHERE!?
LIKE TAKIN' JOHNSON'S FLOOR WAX FROM A BABY!
LIKE, WHERE?!

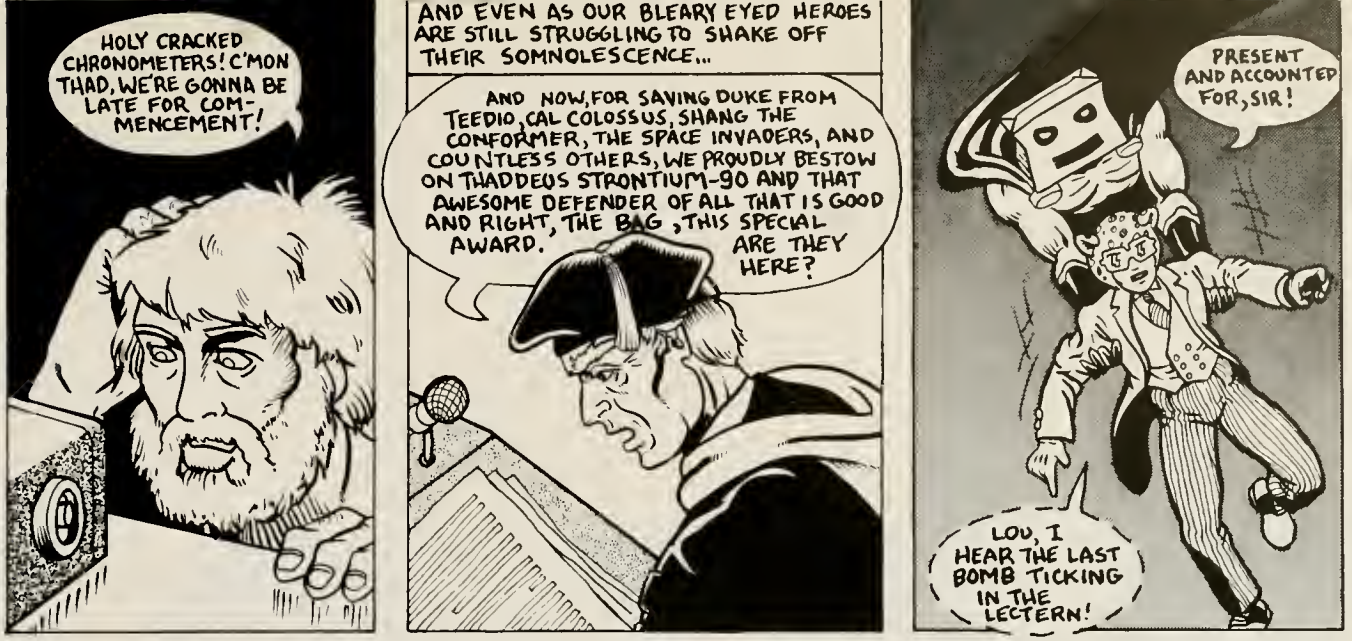
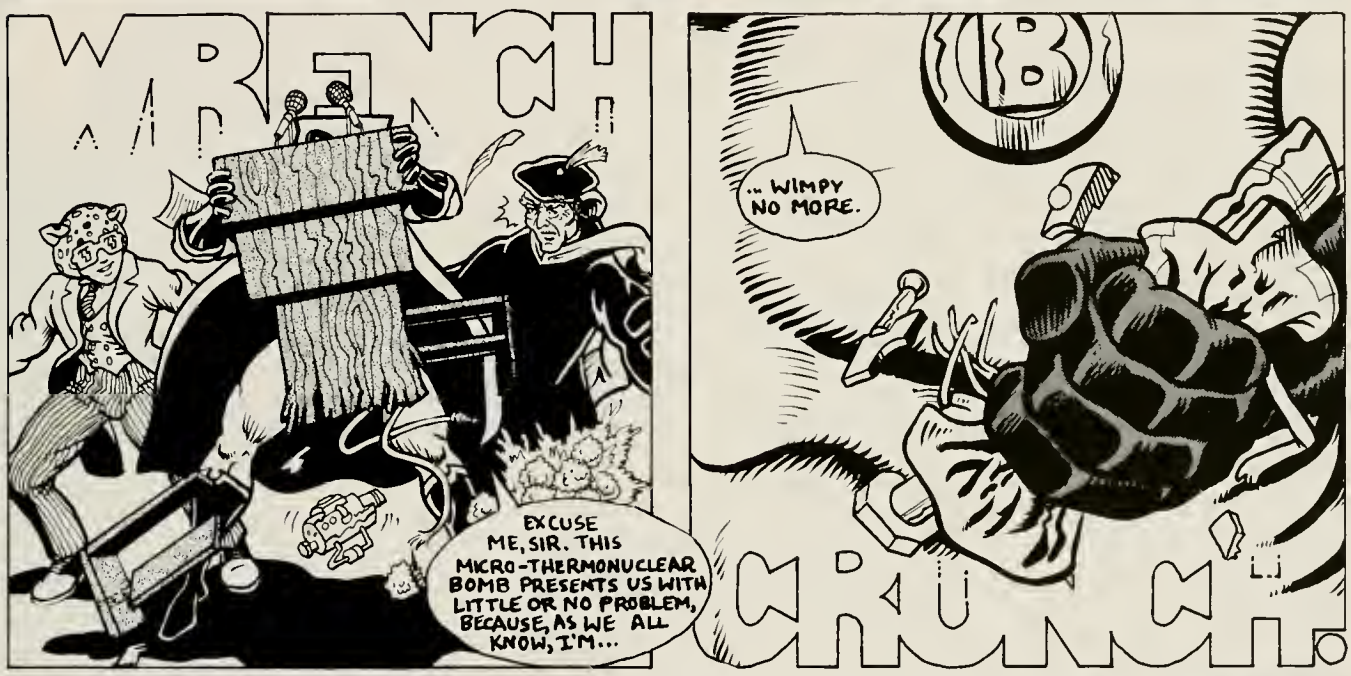
AFTER SEVERAL MORE FRUITLESS HOURS OF SEARCHING, OUR HEROES MEET ON WEST CAMPUS...
I'VE ZAPPED TWO OF THE DEADLY THINGS AND YOU-?
TWO, TOO. AND THAT LEAVES TWO TO GO. GAD, THIS SEARCH AND DESTROY DUTY IS TOUGH. WE DESERVE A BREW!
WELL, WELL! LOOK, SOME GREEKS TAPPING A KEG-RIGHT ON CUE!
HAVE A BREW?
WE'LL TAKE TWO!
AND AFTER A FEW SEVERAL MORE FROSTY DRAUGHTS, THE BAG HEFTS THE KEG TO CHECK THE LEVEL OF ITS PRECIOUS CONTENTS, ONLY TO FIND...
AW, SHUCKS! IT'S ALMOST DEAD, AND WHAT'S MORE, IT'S TICKING.
TICKING?!
WE GOTTA GET RID OF THAT KEG! THERE'S A BOMB IN IT!
HEY! GIVE BACK THAT KEG OR WE'LL ...
...YOU'LL WHAT?
WE'LL, AH, TAP ANOTHER KEG, BAG!
ER, AH, RIGHT!
CHUK
POINT!
THUS QUELLING THE FRATMEN'S TESTY TEMPER, THE BAG DROP KICKS THE KEG-CUM-BOMB WAY OUT PAST THE VAN ALLEN BELTS.
FINALLY, HAVING QUAFFED MANY A BREW, OUR HEROES WEAVE HOMEWARD, HAVING FAILED TO LOCATE THE FINAL BOMB.
WHOOOOOOOSH!
AW, WE'LL FIND IT TOMORRA', RIGHT THAD?
SURE, BURP LOU!
IN A HIDDEN ROOM LINED WITH MONITORS, THE BLONDE BOMBSHELL WATCHES... AND GLOATS.
OF COURSE YOU HAVEN'T FOUND IT YET, DRUNKEN DUO - I HAVEN'T HIDDEN IT YET!
BUT TOMORROW, WHEN I DO, THEY'LL ALL REGRET THE DAY THEY BUMPED ME FROM SORORITY RUSH!



HOLY CRACKED CHRONOMETERS! C'MON THAD, WE'RE GONNA BE LATE FOR COM-MENCEMENT!
AND EVEN AS OUR BLEARY EYED HEROES ARE STILL STRUGGLING TO SHAKE OFF THEIR SOMNOLESCENCE...
AND NOW, FOR SAVING DUKE FROM TEEDIO, CAL COLOSSUS, SHANG THE CONFORMER, THE SPACE INVADERS, AND COUNTLESS OTHERS, WE PROUDLY BESTOW ON THADDEUS STRONTIUM-90 AND THAT AWESOME DEFENDER OF ALL THAT IS GOOD AND RIGHT, THE BAG, THIS SPECIAL AWARD.
ARE THEY HERE?
PRESENT AND ACCOUNTED FOR, SIR!
LOU, I HEAR THE LAST BOMB TICKING IN THE LECTERN!



WRENCH
EXCUSE ME, SIR. THIS MICRO-THERMONUCLEAR BOMB PRESENTS US WITH LITTLE OR NO PROBLEM, BECAUSE, AS WE ALL KNOW, I'M...
.. WIMPY NO MORE.
